Made Accusations

In his press and television statements, Mr. Zand accused Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of condoning torture and charged that demonstrators in Tehran had been machine-gunned from the shah's own helicopter.

He also accused four journalists — including an employee of a U.S. publication, Arnaud de Borchgrave of Newsweek - of accepting gifts or expenses in return for favorable stories about the shah.

All four journalists have issued heated denials, and some of their colleagues have suggested that Mr. Zand attacked them precisely because they have taken the lead in portraying the shah's government as a major bulwark against Soviet expansionism and subversion in the Middle Past : *

Managua's radio said five Vene-zuelan warplanes landed in San Jose today. Sources in Mr. Carazo's office confirmed that Venezuela had agreed to send military help but could not say whether the planes had arrived.

Talks Broken Off

It would be the second time in less than two months that Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, a bitter enemy of Somoza, has sent warplanes to Costa Rica and raised the specter of a regional war. Last September, Venezuela sent live warplanes and Panama sent helicopters when Nicaraguan troops crossed into Costa Rica in pursuit of Sandinista guerrillas, who use Costa Rican territory as staging bases for attacks on Somo-The internal Nicaraguan crisis maroon pants. The body has been disemboweled and the head is lying beside the right elbow. The Tanzanian government permitted four Western correspondents to travel briefly to the Kagera salient, the 700-square-mile strip overrun by 3,000 Ugandan troops on Oct. 30 and held for twn weeks.

It was the first opportunity for journalists to visit the front. During a two-hour tour that reached a point six miles north of the river, after an arduous journey across roads a foot deep in mud, it was impossible to totally verify Tanzanian claims that genocide had taken place.

But judging from the accounts of refugees, who told stories of Ugandan soldiers spraying village com-pounds with machine-gun fire, and udging from the scope of the destruction in property, it is apparent that the marauding invaders killed civilians with abandon.

Tanzania asserts that 40,000 residents escaped the Ugandans by fleeing across the Kagera, leaving behind between 5,000 and 10,000 unaccounted for and feared dead. Among them, according to reports carried by Tanzania's governmentowned Daily News, were 485 Tan-zanians transported to a prison at (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

GEORGETOWN, Gnyana, Nov. 22 (WP) — When I first reached Joaestown, with Rep. Leo Ryan's party, we were all struck by the neat wooden structures so far from civilization, and by the mix of blacks and whites, young and old - seemingly normal people who, we were told, had willingly chosen to live so far from home.

Marceline Jones, James Jones's wife, met us as we left the Jonestown dump truck that had brought us from the Port Kaituma airstrip, where our plane had landed several bours before and where Rep. Ryan would be killed along with four others the next afternoon.

Marcie, as everyone called her, invited us to the pavilion where Mr. Jones awaited us and where he would lead his followers in a mass suicide less than 24 hours later. Evcrything was so alive and so peaceful that Friday night, at least on the surface, that it was impossible to know that this carefully cultivated little world would soon be destroyed by a man gone mad.

Marcie told us that supper -bot pork sandwiches and greens, fruit tarts and coffee -was ready.

We would be told proudly by our the ghetto and without the materihosts that everything we are had been raised in Jonestown, this quasi-religious, socialist agricultural commune carved, out of Guyana's remote rain forest.

Greeted by Residents

As we walked to the pavilion, residents of the commune greeted us individually and accompanied us. They engaged us in conversa-tion, asking about our trip, telling us how glad they were that we would have a chance to see that Jonestown was not the concentration camp that its detractors had

Most of the commune residents, those who were not part of the welcoming party, were eating dinner in a nearby dining area, washing clothes in the open-air communal laundry or baking bread.

Children gathered around swings and benches near the pavilion and Jonestown appeared to be just what its brochures said it was: a place where people of all races and ages could live in peace without the vio-lence and hate they had known in alistic anxieties of their native United States. Jonestown was an experiment in socialism, we were told, where money, power and elitism had been eliminated. The hundreds of seniors, as the aged were called, got the best medical attention and their lives had new meaning.

For the young blacks among the more than 800 residents, Jonestown offered an escape from the drugs and crime in which we were told many of them had been involved before coming to Guyana. And for the middle class, college-educated whites — who seemed to hold the top leadership positions - Jonestown seemed to be a logical extension of the civil rights and antiwar battles they had fought in the past decade, ft was the socialist society that they wanted for their native country, but that they realized was impossible at least for now.

Although we had been told that once we got to Jonestown, we would be free to wander and talk to anyone we wished, we began to feel we were being guided.

First to the pavilion, then to sit down with one of our new friends," then to meet the leader himself, who sat at the head of our table complaining about a 103 de-gree fever he said he had suffered from that day. We then went to eat dinner and to watch an elaborate

It was an observation I would not forget. It was the first real sign that maybe these people had been either programmed or somehow forced to act in a way that conformed to an image Jones wanted to project.

I also would not forget the man whom the congressmawn pointed out. His name, I later learned, was Tom Kice, Sr., and he would be shooting at me and the others at the airstrip the next aftenoon.

As I walked around the pavilion, I noticed that most people scattered as soon as I came near. I also noted that someone would always "Sure," I said, "hut I can hear it from here. I'm curious to see your facilities."

The usual response was that there would be a tour the next day, that people probably were asleep in the cabins. Or some other reason was given why I really should not wander around on my own.

I decided to return to the table where Mr. Jones was talking to some of the other reporters who had come along. Mark Lane and Charles Garry. Jonestown's two lawyers, were there, as were several young people who I would later learn were Mr. Jones's principal lieutenants. "People here are happy for the first time in their lives. Mr. Jones was saying. "When can this dia-logue [between Jonestown and its detractors] stop so we can all live in peace? I don't want to tear these

Mr. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said the undervaluation resulted from a number of factors. For 1975 taxes, he said, the warehouse had supplied county officials with an extensive list of new equipment purchased that year, listing the cost of some of the items but omitting cost figures for others. In calculating the value of the warehouse's holdings, Mr. Powellsaid, county officials apparently had added up only the cost figures onlied to them. Mr. Powell said yesterday that he assumed the cost figures had not been available for some of the equipment when the tax declara-

Unesco Adopts Code Endorsing Free Flow of News

By Joseph Fitchett PARIS, Nov. 22 (IHT) - Capping eight years of debate. Uoesco member countries today adopted by acclamation a declaration on mass media calling for a free flow of information and omitting all Soviet-drafted phrases supporting government control of news coverage.

The outcome marked a diplomatic victory for the United States and other Western countries opposed to any text sanctioning curbs on press

The final text, which bore little resemblance to the original draft submitted for negotiations four weeks ago, reflected Western governments' amendments. Besides endorsing the free flow of information, it stresses human rights, drops earlier provisions possibly support-ing governmental responsibility for the press, and calls for protection of journalists, guarantees of their access to information and freedom to report without censorship or

U.S. Ambassador John Reinhardt said he doubted that reporters and news coverage would be affected practically by the Unesco code, which was "unen-forceable in the usual legal sense."

The original text, however, might have enabled governments to "explain and justify" restrictions on local reporting and foreign correspondents, he said.

Other conference sources said that Western diplomacy in Unesco had produced "a remarkable turnaround" on the press code in favor of reporting freedom and against Soviet concepts.

Reflecting the protracted, often the document, Uoesco over the document, Uoesco Director-General Amadou Mahtar M'Bow said he had "had doubts and mis-givings about [the chances of] arriving at a consensus.

A final split over the issue would have profoundly troubled Unesco's relations with Western member governments, cotably a handful of industrial countries which contribute 60 percent of the organization's budget, diplomats said.

At the Unesco general conference today, delegates who had oegotiated intensely during the past four weeks, stood and applauded to signify their governments' acceptance of the document. Ratification by the 146 member countries is considered a formality.

The standing ovation — and Unesco officials unmistakable feeling of relief and impression that their organization has gained a new lease on life — was a striking contrast to the divisive mood and forecasts of oational walkouts when the conference opened last month.

The Uoesco consensus was a personal political victory for Mr. M'Bow, who reportedly has ambi-tions to be re-elected Uoesco head and then to seek the job of UN sec-

Those MiGs in Cuba: U.S. Aides Divided

By George C. Wilson WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (WP)

— The Soviet Union has sent less than a squadron of MiG-23 war-planes to Cuba. This much is agreed upon by officials in the government and hard-liners nurside it. That is about all they do agree upon.

The breadth of the disagreement was dramatized yesterday as the former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency and the secretary of state exchanged fire on the MiG-23 Retired Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, who headed the intelligence agency from 1974 to 1976, charged during a press conference sponsored by the American Securi-Council that the Carter Administration "was covering up the rather dangerous breach of the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement banning the deployment of offensive weap-ons in Cuba. The conservative council favors a tough policy toward Cuba and its Soviet patrons.

The fact is that it really does not make much difference if the MiG-23s turn out to be the versions the Russians use for air defense or the ones tailored for bombing. Bombs could be strapped on either type.

The significant military queston is whether Soviet MiG-23s in Cuba pose a threat to the United States. Not Armed Camp

All this does not mean that the United States would sit idly by and watch Cuba become an armed camp. But the 10 MiG-23s in Cuba. plus the Soviet Osa class purboats on the way there, which carry Styx anti-ship missiles with a range of about 20 miles, do not add up to an armed camp.

Gen. Graham conceded at his press conference that Cuba does not intend to attack the United States, whether it has MiG-23s tailored for carrying nuclear bombs or not. So why, at this delicate moment, is the Soviet Union sending MiG-23s into the backyard of the United States?

Apparently oo U.S. official knows the answer for sure but it has to be a political reasoo - not a military one - since going to war simply does not make sense.

Perhaps, in exchange for sending Cuban troops into Africa, the Soviet Union agreed to modernize President Fidel Castro's air force and navy. The United States, to cite a parallel, felt obliged to modernize Taiwan's air force even though Peking worries about this.

Or perhaps Gen. Graham is right in asserting that the Russians are arming Cuba to dramatize the "impotency" of the United States and to test President Carter. Whatever the reason, MiGs in Cuba today cannot be equated with the missiles the Russians put there in 1962 when the resulting U.S. confrootation had a chance of one in three of leading to all-out war, according to President John F. Kennedy.

countries, the new U.S.-supported ternational information in Unesco next year to reallocate the world's radio frequencies.

In the declaration, key provisions support journalists' freedom to re-port and "fullest possible facilities of access to information" and call for "protection guaranteeing them the best conditions for the exercise of their profession." To gratify Thrid World countries, the declaration mentions a need for the "establishment of a new equilibrium and greater re-ciprocity in the flow of informa-tion" — a veiled reference to the new information order sought by developing countries to redress the international duminance of Westem media.

Another point in the 11 articles calls on governments to help the developing countries expand and improve their media.

The final compromise concerned a reference to the UN covenant on political rights, which contains provisions subordinating press free-dom in conditions which some Western critics found unacceptable. Instead, the final version referred to specific articles of the cov-enant which Western news organizations and diplomats accepted.

U.S. Police Fear More Violence Among Cultists

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 22 (WP) — Although the People's Temple cult seems to have been obliterated in the deaths of more than 400 of its members in Guyana last weekend, former temple members and some Bay area law enforce-ment agencies believe that more violence is possible.

Only hours after the mass suicide of the sect's members in Jonestown, Guyana, on Saturday, an anony-mous caller threatened to kill Will Holsinger, one of Rep. Leo Ryan's staff members who has participated in the investigation of the cult. FBI agents, investigating the possibility of a U.S.-based conspiracy behind Rep. Ryan's murder, have been ordered to investigate the threat against Mr. Holsinger. Berkeley police have been guarding former members of the sect who run a halfway house for ex-cultists, the Human Freedom Center. In addition, San Francisco police have been assigned to protect former cult members and their famiafter reports of a maintained by the sect's leader, James Jones. According to former members of the eburch, those on the list were to be killed in the event that something happened to Mr. Jones or the People's Temple.

The son said some ugly things had happened at Jonestown. It was possible, he said, that children were disciplined by tying a rope around their bodies and throwing them into a deep well. He also thought possible that unruly teen-agers or runaways had been placed in "in-tensive care" and treated with drugs. But he said he knew oothing of locking children in a packing crate for long periods to discipline them or of rumors that the com-mune had created an assassination squad among the younger men.

Mr. Jones is being detained with 45 commune members at the cult's Georgetown headquarters, where four others — two young women and two children — had their throats slit on Saturday night. Another cult member, Paula

Alleged Leader In Abduction of Empain Caught

PARIS, Nov. 22 (AP) — Francois Caillol, alleged ringleader of the gang that kidnapped Baroo Edouard-Jean Empain and held him hooded and chained for nine weeks, was arrested here last night.

The police said Caillol, 37, was picked up as he arrived at an apartment where another alleged leading member of the gang, Georges Ber-toncini, was captured earlier yesterday. Bertoncini had been arrested in Lisbon June 10 but later escaped. Caillol's brother, Alain, was arrest-ed in a shoot-out with the police March 24 when they closed in as the ransom of 40 million francs (about $8 million) for the baron was supposedly being handed over.

Alain agreed after police interrogation to telephone the gang, telling them to release Baron Empain, who was freed two days later. During his captivity, the gang had cut off the tip of his little finger and sent it to his family with a ransom

I was sitting right next to Mr. Jones and I remembered something Grace Stoen, a former People's Temple member by whom Mr. Jones elaimed to have fathered a son, had told me. She said Mr. Jones, for all his insistence that he was a caring, unselfish man, was in fact incredibly vain and power hun-

'Just look at his sideburns," she said. "He fills them with eye liner." I was curious. It was true.

Suddenly, as I was staring at Mr. Jones's sideburns, his demeanor changed. I didn't hear the question he had just been asked, but the answer, I thought, was revealing: "Threat, threat, threat of extinction," he raged. "I wish I wasn't born, at times. I understand hate, love and hate. They are very close." "They can have me." he said. "In many ways I feel like I'm dying.

Tve oever felt this way before. Someone asked Mr. Jones about the beatings that reportedly took place at Jonestown, about the black box that residents were said to be placed in for days at a time when they did something Mr. Jones did not like, about the endless sermons he preached that kept his people, even the aged, up until 2 or 3 in the morning even though they had to rise at 6 a.m. to begin work.

Another Rage

This prompted another rage and I almost felt sorry for the man. He was obviously siek and some of what he said seemed incoherent.

"I do not believe in violence," he said. "Violence corrupts. And then they say I want power. What kind of power do I have walking down the path talking to little old

Locust Swarms Termed Plague In Asia, Africa

ROME, Nov. 22 (UPI) — Locust infestations in the desert regions of Africa and southwest Asia have reached plague proportions and will resist all possible eradication efforts for at least another year, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reported today.

The FAO said that if not stopped, the locusts could sweep from the Himalayas in Asia to the Atlantic coast of Africa. The most seriously affected areas are the Sudan, the Horn of Africa and the coastal areas of the Red Sea, the FAO said. The report said that the plague began after 16 years of dormancy by the locusts and despite the ap-plication of more than 2,400 tons of insecticides in 10 countries this The FAO said eradication efforts had been hampered during the past year because of warfare in northern Ethiopia and the Horn of Africa. things, one of which was particular-ly interesting. He said he knew for sure that there was at least one gun in Jonesville, an automatic rifle, that had been registered with the Guyanese government.

Bold-Faced Lie

Don Harris asked Mr. Jones about the gun in an interview that he taped when we returned to Jonestown the next morning.
"A bold-faced lie!" Mr. Jones thundered. "It seems like we are defeated by lies." Mr. Jones said he believed there was a conspiracy against him and against the People's Temple, a conspiracy that he blamed for a number of lawsuits that he said prevented him from returning to the United States

"I wish somebody had shot me dead," he said again. "Now, we're substituting media smear for assassinations.

Suddenly, the word came that several families had decided to leave with Rep. Ryan. People were gathering. Tension, for the first time, was so apparent that it could Circumstances were pressing in. Facts were beginning to overcome Mr. Jooes's denials as fast as he could make them. Don Harris was throwing questions at Mr. Jones, hard questions that events were making even harder to answer.

The more that leave, the less responsibility we have," Mr. Jones was saying after denying that any one wanted to leave the idyllic life Jonestown offered. "Who in the hell wants people?"

Mr. Harris returned to the question of guns at Jonestown.

Mr. Jones said, clearly near the breaking point. "I might as well die. The guns have never been used to intimidate people. Anyone is free to come and go.

U.K. Gets Bids For Oil Drilling

LONDON, Nov. 22 (Reuters) — Nearly 100 oil companies have re-plied to the British government's latest offer of concessions to drill for oil in the North Sea, Energy Secretary Anthony Benn has

A total of 55 applications involving nearly t00 companies have been submitted for the 46 parcels where drilling is being invited, Mr. Benn said. But he said Exxon, the world's largest oil company, did not apply, and Shell, an important North Sea operator, applied to drill only in one would acce. only in one small area.

The British government has said will increase state control of offshore oil development and increase the petroleum-revenue tax.

"The only thing I feel is that every time they go, they lie. What I thought was keeping them here was the fear of the ghetto, alienation, the fear of industrialized society. I must have failed somehow.

"I want to hug them before they leave," he said as events were quickly moving beyond his control. More people wanted to go. "I will let them. But they will try to destroy us. They'll try. They always lie when they leave."

People were crying. Families were divided with some members wanting to go hut others not, fear-ing they could not.

Al Simon packed up his three kids and wanted to leave. As we were walking back to the dump truck for the final trip to Port Kiatuma airstrip, Mr. Simon's wife began screaming.

"No, no, no," she screamed. Someone whispered to her: "Don't worry, we're going to take care of

Rep. Ryan returned to the pavilion to see about the custody problem. We went to the truck. A few minutes later, as we waited, we heard a commotion. The newsmen ran to the pavilion hut were stopped by security men.

Many U.S. Waste Disposal Sites May Pose Serious Health Risks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (NYT) - The Environmental Prote tion Agency said yesterday that it assumed there were at least 638 disposal sites in the United States that may contain hazardom wastes harmful to the public's heaith.

The agency did oot identify these sites, saying they had been located on the basis of file surveys, though most of them were already known to state and local environmental protection depart The agency listed an additional 103 waste sites on which it said some federal or state action had been taken. These included the Love Canal and Hyde Park landfill sites in Niagara Falls, N.Y. where the Hooker Chemical Corp. had dumped hazardous waster as well as the Kin-Buc landfill in Middlesex County, N.J. The EPA estimated that between 30 and 40 million tons of haz

U.K. Ford Workers Win A 17% Increase in Wages

LONDON, Nov. 22 (UPI) - The 57,000 workers of the U.S.-owned during weeks of on-again-off-ag Ford plants throughout Britain voted overwhelmingly today to end a nine-week strike estimated to have cost the company more than £450 million (about $900 million) in lost production.

They voted during meetings by show of hands to accept a pay hike of a little under 17 per cent - more than three times the 5 per cent antiinflation ceiling set by Prime Min-ister James Callaghan's Labor government for all pay boosts in the next 12 months.

The government has warned it will apply "sanctions" against Ford and any other major company breaking the pay limit. In the case of Ford these were likely to involve ending government contracts worth millions of pounds to buy Ford products.

But, despite warnings of sanctions, unions in other industries have filed pay demands of 40 to 45 per cent and threatened crippling strikes if these are not met. Io addition to a production loss of 100,000 vehicles to the company the two main Ford unions — the tal control of Lusaka's international airport and of the Zambian air force base at Mumbwa without fir-Transport and General Workers and the Engineering Workers --have paid out more than £3 million the Zambian armed forces by pointing out that the government had deliberately avoided spending (about $6 million) in strike pay.

The company initially offered a 5-percent raise. The workers at once walked out and shut down all the plants. The unions originally had demanded about a boost of 27 per cent.

Until the past week most Western and Chinese analysis had thought that while Mr. Teng was the real decision maker in China, he was content to allow Mr. Hua to be chairman and premier and not dredge up Mr. Hua's role in the Cultural Revolution or the events of 1976 when Mr. Teng was purged for a second time.

PHILIPS

Philips' new dictation system features the amazing Mini-cassette 2 with Visual Mark & Find. This unique facility greatly simplifies dictation indexing, and allows separately identifiable messages to be recorded. No more hand-written notes; no separate strips to fill in. And it enables rapid access to any recorded item. Mini-cassette 2 has, on each side, a special built-in indexing strip. After each dictation item, or before recording an important message for your secretary, simply press a button on the microphone and a mark is made on the strip. At the same time, a special tone is recorded on the tape. From the marks, your secretary can see how much dictation has been recorded, and if the tape contains any messages. With our new machines, designed to recognize the special tones, any recorded item can be found - quickly and accurately. Afterwards, the marks can be erased, so the cassette can be used indefinitely.

here, still heset by treacherous preoccupations, still stumbling and searching for peace and self-esteem. In the United States, the Thanksgiving sermons will express gratitude as they should, for the gifts of a Providence which has blessed the country with material ease, and among those gifts is the time and opportunity to say so.

But with material ease goes a recognized want of spiritual satisfaction. We cannot think we are a people especially destined to receive what we have heen given, or what we have taken. The pilgrims who celebrated the first Thanksgiving in the harsh setting of Massachusetts Bay were far closer to the hungry and the insecure in other parts of the world, threatened daily by disaster, than they

So it is only with concern for those whose stomachs are not filled today that we can properly enjoy that part of nature we have been able to convert to our own use. The Thanksgiving of 1978 finds the world still 20th century has taught its children much. But there is nevertheless one lesson we have learned, the lesson of human hrotherhood, which will not let us sit down to a laden table without a thought of those whose table is not laden, or who will never see such a sight for one year's end to another.

> This does not mean we deserve to feel guilty or unworthy so long as we helieve that thers are equally worthy too. If we know how to reap plenteously, it follows in the simplest of ways that we must show others how to sow plenteously. This is the thought that should come to us when we get hored by hearing about world bunger campaigns or when we make the easy assumptions that the waste and corruption that seem to go hand in hand with the relief of misery are inevitable political realities. For nothing that is purely ven can be truly wasted.

And now, cousins and friends, light meat

Abiding by Camp David

Is it now safe to hope that Israel and Egypt can go ahead and conclude a peace treaty? That would seem to follow from Israel's decision to accept the U.S.-sponsored draft that it rejected four weeks ago. At that time, the preamble's "linkage" between an Egyptian-Israeli treaty and negotiations on West Bank-Gaza autonomy seemed to some Israeli cabinet ministers too explicit. In fact, the language reflected precisely the careful ambiguity of the Camp David accords; it balanced off Egypt's need to assure its Arab allies that it was not bargaining for itself alone and the Israelis' need for assurance that, as President Carter said, they "retain an option on the final status of the West Bank and Gaza."

Only when Egypt, responding to the Israeli Cabinet, countered with its own unacceptable departures from the Camp David accords — a demand for a timetable for West Bank and Gaza autonomy and for an Egyptian presence in Gaza - did the Israelis realize they had overstepped. They now wish to turn back the clock to the U.S. draft, President Sadat, we trust, will do the same.

In suggesting the other day that the Camp David accords might bave to be modified, President Carter added a condition: "if both sides agree." Otherwise, he said, "we will insist that those accords be honored meticulously." Frankly, we doubt the two sides will soon agree on modifying the accords. Even if an agreed defect - say, an oversight - were detected (and none has been), making a change would conjure up a twin specter of revision and unraveling. The political implications would be too overwhelming.

But if the accords are not to be changed, iney must indeed be "nonored meliculously The Israelis, by attempting to loosen the linkage between an Egyptian-Israeli treaty and West Bank-Gaza negotiations, raised suspicions that they were trying to back out of what to Egypt was the fundamental tenet negotiated at Camp David. Tending to confirm those suspicions was Prime Minister Begin's call at the same time to 'thicken' Israel's West Bank settlements. This move. coming just as Israel was complaining that Jordan and West Bankers were holding themselves aloof from the Camp David process, suggested to many Arabs, and others. that some Israelis wished to encourage the Jordanians and West Bankers to do precisely

Meanwhile, the Egyptians, by trying to write a specific West Bank-Gaza timetable into their treaty with Israel, aroused fears that they were trying to back out of what to Israel was the basic point of Camp David. The Israelis are determined to cement a peace treaty with the one Arab neighbor that will now deal with them, With reason, they fear that to hinge a treaty with Egypt on specific steps they must take with Arabs who refuse to deal with them is to give radical Palestinians a veto over the Egyptian treaty. Egypt could yet, after a treaty, decline to put some of its diplomatic provisions into effect. That is Egypt's leverage on a resolution of the Palestinian issue: Israel's leverage lies in its physical occupation of the West Bank and Gaza territories.

The roller coaster of recent weeks should have reminded even the most optimistic wellwishers of the Arab-Israeli peace process how easy it is to fall off. The rail to hold to. however, is Camp David. It was a brilliant achievement, particularly in its distinctions between what could be decided now tthe Sinai) and what had to be left for settlement over time (the West Bank and Gaza). Brilliance aside, it represented an agreement and commitment between two countries with a powerful - and mutual - interest in making

A Red Carpet for Senators

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., the leader of a Senate delegation that spent several days in the Soviet Union, likes to think that the sometimes-stormy sessions with Soviet leaders were worthwhile if they did no more than make the Kremlin more aware of U.S. political realities — and vice versa.

One such reality is the degree of independence enjoyed by the Senate in its foreign-policy role. Another is that many senators' votes on the prospective strategic arms limitation agreement will be influenced heavily by Soviet behavior in areas that have nothing directly to do with SALT-2.

As members of the I2-man delegation conceded unhappily, there is no assurance that their visit had any effect on their hosts. But whether the Russians learned anything or not, the senators left Moscow with a heightened appreciation of bow deep and fundamental differences in perception between the two sides make successful negotiations diffi-

The senators met with four members of the 13-man ruling Politburo, including President Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin. This unusually high access suggests that the Kremlin understands well the power of the Senate in foreign affairs, and was anxious to make a good impression.

Yet Kosygin, especially, reacted angrily when the senators expressed concern over buman rights in Russia, the Soviet role in Africa, the supply of MiG-23s to Cuba and the overall Soviet arms buildup - and emphasized that they could spoil the atmosphere in which an arms-control agreement is voted on by the Senate.

The clumsy display of irritation may bave been calculated, but it is just as likely that it was real.

The Soviet Union, notwitbstanding its signature on the buman-rights provisions of the Helsinki agreement, does look on foreign criticism of its violations as interference in its internal affairs.

The Kremlin leaders do believe that the Soviet Union and Cuha are riding the tide of history in places like Africa, and that it is the Western powers that are wrong by trying to

They do have a hard time believing that a U.S. president can't control the Senate if he really wants to. And they resent being crossexamined by men who, hy their lights are minor politicians.

The fact remains that the Senate does have a strong role in foreign policy, and any government imagining it can do husiness with the United States without regard for Senate attitudes is deluding itself.

The fact that the Russians rolled out the reddest of red carpets for the senators suggests they are beginning to accept this reality. bowever grudgingly.

Take a Stand on Pretoria

By Jonathan Power

ONDON - South Africa is threatening the West with its wn sanctions" — the shrewd obown sanctions" servation of an U.S. diplomat. At the West approaches its near inevitable showdown with South Africa over Namihia, the truth of that remark becomes every day more apparent. For the West to get into a confrontation with nch, self-sufficient white South Africa over a stretch of semidesert country, legally the possession of the United Nations but ruled by Pretoria — that barely anyone in the West knows the name of — is not a way to win votes and accolades at home. Quite

The latent sympathy for white South Africa that lies deep within the bosom of a significant part of the predominantly white electorates in Europe and North America might become actively roused if they see their governments spend-ing inordinate amounts of energy and finance, with a not unnoticeable disruption to economic life at home, for the sake of the "freedom" of a few million blacks in a taraway African country, a freedom that must be in quotation marks since a new black govern-ment is likely to be at once Marxist and anti-civil libertarian.

Tucked Away

There is however another side to the coin. Namibia, it is true, is a relatively insignificant country tucked away in the bottom corner of Africa, but is the territory which the dice of history have determined will be the point at which the broad interests of Western democracy and the narrow interest of white supremist governments in southern Africa come into conflict. Namibia. 1978, is not too unlike Czecboslovakia, 1938.

Whatever the rights and wrongs of whether the West should support the cause of radical change in southern Africa (1 happen to believe it is right), the simple truth is it has to. The Soviet Union, the East Germans and the Cubans are firmly tied in with all the black guerrilla movements: in SWAPO, the Namibian movement based in neighboring Angola, in ZAPU and a lesser extent) in ZANU, the Rhodesian movements based in Zamoia and Mozambique. No military analyst who knows the situation today would argue that Rhodesia is holdable for more than a year or two and probably much less.

In Namibia, where the guerrilla movement is not so experienced or well-armed, the time might be stretched to five or even, if SWAPO were left to itself. 10 years. In practice it would be less because once it became clear that the West was not delivering on its firm commitments to the rest of the world to end South African rule in Namibia, the Russians and their allies would have a care blanche to step up their military support. Predicament

If the West in any way tried to support South Africa in this predicament, it would find itself rejected not just by the rest of black Africa, which would be bad enough, since Nigeria alone is a more important trading partner than South Africa, but by hage chunks of Asia and South America. Added to that would be the divisions in its own camp.
The furors over the Vietnam war might be minor in comparison. So obvious is this scenario that if the West tries a half-way house, like linking Soviet restrain in southern Africa to SALT or to trade deals, the Russians would call the West's enough when they went down to Pretoria last month? Why the reticence about economic sanctions at the moment of decision? Senior members of the British delegation, surprised by Mr. Vance's decision not to use a heavy stick, assumed it was because the secretary of state was worried whether his administration could carry Congress with him if he was tough and uncompromising. The South Africans sensed this and stuck to their position, which in ef-

I had the chance to briefly talk this over Mr. Vance while we were both in Moscow last month. Nothing he said conflicted with the determination he expressed to me earthe likelihood of sanctions. The conclusion must be that in Pretoria, Mr. Vance was eogaged in a tactical maneuver, hiding his time in the hope that in the 11th hour the South Africans will see sense. Perhaps they were waiting for the congressional elections to be out of the

Although I do not question Mr. Vance's own commitment, still less Andrew Young's, whose influence on President Carter remains undiminished. There is an unfortunate sense of disarray in the Western camp. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has let it be known through an in-terview in this month's Africa magazine that he thinks economic sanctions are counterproductive. The French are now for sanctions, a sharp turnaround on their previous position. The British are too obviously betwixt and between with the Cabinet's debate reflected in alternate paragraphs of Mr. Owen's conversations.

Instead of war in the Middle East, and all the talk of a collapse of peace talks between Israel and Egypt, officials here are now planning this Thanksgiving on a dramatic peace-treaty signing on Mount Sinai within the next few weeks by President Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Begin of Israel, with President Carter in attendance. Pensioners Abroad Despite the emotional terminology in which Frank Palinay (Letters, Nov. 7) chooses to present the plight of "pinched pensioners" — "as if their expatriation had been an act of treason" and "were La-fayette and Kosciuszko disloyal?" — the cold light of reason shows that it is not the duty of society to come to their rescue.

Nobody told these pensioners to return to the country of their ori-gin. They made a deliberate decision to enjoy the benefits, as it appeared at the time, of a U.S. dollar income, while enjoying the lower costs of living in the country of their origin. Nobody condemned them for that decision, although for the most part they no longer paid taxes or spent money in the United States, and the countries to which they returned enjoyed a magnifi-cent "invisible import" of many millions of dollars annually.

Mr. Palinay presumably worked for and earned the pension he receives. How he handles his pension is up to him. But is the U.S. taxpayer supposed to make up for the unfortunate decision and lessthan-perfect judgment of those who decided to settle abroad? Should these people receive more than the majority who chose to stay and live in the United States? Comparing these pensioners by historical analogy with Lafayette and Kosciuszko is inappropriate. Have we really come so far that an appeal for special assistance for a small group of persons can be portrayed in such heroic terms? Rather, let the expatriate pensioners accept in good grace and dignity the consequences of their own decisions. Hamburg. JOHN CLABEAUX.

Byproducts of the opening of an oceanic basin may be of great importance. In the Atlantic, for example, they include vast deposits of black shale, thought to be a precursor of oil and gas formation, particularly when cooked by heat below. In the Atlantic, though, the splitting process cannot readily be studied because mountains of sediment have buried evidence of what happened.

There is, however, what seems a close parallel of a newly opening ocean — Mexico's Gulf of California. And, in the coming months, two projects will explore the process. One of them is the most ambitious effort so far to monitor seafloor earthquake activity. It will employ some 70 submersible

One specially designed seismoneter, 15 feet long, will be lowered into a 1,600-foot hole that will be drilled into the crest of the East Pa-cific Rise where it enters the Gulf of California. The spreading of the seafloor away from that rise split the peninsula of Baja California from the Mexican mainland.

The splitting process, which be-gan about 4 million years ago, has worked northward into California's Imperial Valley and is related to the sliding movements that cause California's earthquakes. It is also believed to be an analogue of the rupturing that gave birth to the At-ments under the Gulf of California and along its shores are thin enough to bring those zones within reach of the drill ship Glomar Challenger. In an effort that parallels the seismic observations, the ship will drill holes in various areas of the gulf and near its mouth.

Much of the effort to record earthquake activity will be concentrated on the fringes of the Rivera Plate, a section of seafloor south of the gulf where relative motion between plates produces many quakes. The Rivera Plate is named for Diego Rivera, the late Mexican muralist, and the program is known as ROSE, for Rivera Ocean Seismic

For a month, beginning in mid-January, hundreds of explosive charges ranging in weight from less than a pound to one ton will be detonated in the gulf so that seismographs on the seafloor and additional ones ashore can be used to chart deep structures with recorded shock waves.

Since the explosions will occur at known places and times, recording them on shore should, for the first time, make possible precise pin-pointing of each natural earthquake. At present, so little is known of shock-wave velocities under the gulf that quake positions are sometimes accurate only to within 20 or 30 miles. The following month, the seismic arrays will be used to record natural quakes.

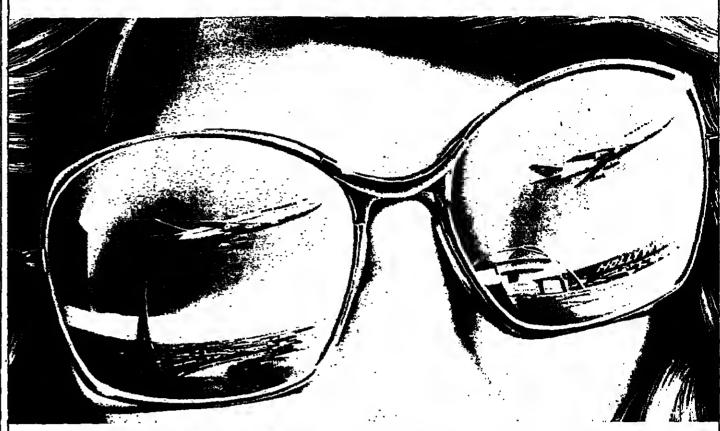

The drilling, beginning in December, will bore into the Rivera Plate, as well as into the floor of the Guaymas Basin half-way up the gulf. The sites have been chosen to sample the transition between continental rock and newly formed seafloor.

The projected experiments inasurement of the heat flow from the Earth's interior, sampling of the water (which may be rich in metals), and testing of the rock properties at the bottom of the hole by induced water pressure. Heat flow through the floor of the Guaymas Basin is "extremely high," according to the prospectus Helium is leaking from the Earth's interior there, and hot springs are depositing material extracted from the rocks below onto the scalloor in a manner thought to have created some of the world's metal deposits. A similar process has laid purified metal on the floor of the Red Sea, which has many features in common with the Gulf of California.

The organizers of the ROSE project are from more than a dozen universities and research centers in the United States, Mexico and Europe. So intensive a study of seafloor earthquake activity has never before been possible, since no single research institution has more than a handful of ocean-bottom

Surgical Sterilization Gaining in U.S.

By Jane E. Brody NEW YORK (NYT) - This year more than a million U.S. couples will find freedom from pills, IUDs, diaphragms, condoms, loam and the fear of unwanted pregnancies hy either the busband or wife having a simple operation. Approximately half of the estimated 9 to 10 million persons who have been sterilized to date are women. (Vasectomies, sterilizations for males, have surged in populari-ty in the past decade: about half a million are performed in the U.S.

The female operation, commonly called "tying the tubes." is some-what more popular than vasectomy, largely because new techniques bave simplified the procedure, putting it more nearly on a par with vasectomy for cost, safety and time doctor a view of the tubes through a half-incb incision made in the lower rim of the navel. The abdomen is first inflated with carbon dioxide to provide an unobstructed view and to reduce the chance of injuring other organs; then the la-paroscope is inserted. In most instances, the tubes are sealed by burning them electrically. (The pro-out a segment of each tube and sealing the ends.) The resulting damage to the tubes is extensive, so tractiveness has been enhanced by fears of hazards associated with other contraception methods, particularly the possible long-term tisks of the pill; by contraceptive failures; hy growing concerns about overpopulation; and by the soaring costs of raising and educating children.

Most Effective

Sterilization is by far the most effective way of avoiding unwanted pregnancy (about 100 times more so than the pill, the next surest methods, and the health bazards are usually one-time risks faced at the time of the procedure.

Female sterilization involves ying, cutting or otherwise sealing the fallopian tubes: The operation makes it impossible for the male's sperm to reach the female's egg. The surgery does not affect the woman's menstrual cycle, change the normal production of sex bor-mones, or interfere with sexual expression or desire.

It is extremely important, however, for both men and women first to think through the possible situations that might change a decision to have no more children. How would you feel if one or more of your children died, if you were divorced and did not retain custody of your children, if your spouse died, if you remarried someone who might want to bave children with you, if you had nothing to fill your life after your children grew up and moved away?

Much Safer

Consider also the fact that although the operations are much safer than in the past, they still involve anesthesia, surgery and risk of complications, including death. Differnt techniques vary in effectiveness and in the likelihood of complications. The procedures

It requires about five days in the techniques), as is its birth-con-

Hysterectomy

Some women resort to hysterec-tomy (removal of the uterus) to become sterile. But hysterectomy is hy far the most dangerous method and should not be used for sterilization unless there are other medically urgent reasons for removing the uterus. Fifteen percent of women baving bysterectomies suffer se-rious complications, 10 times more than with tubal sterilization.

As for long-term effects of female sterilization, there bave been several reports from England stating that years after the proce-dure, some women have developed extremely heavy and painful men-strual periods, which may necessitate hysterectomies.

The costs of female sterilization in the United States generally range from $150 to $1,000.

Lausanne Foundation Will House Monnet Archives

By Calla Corner

AUSANNE, Switzerland of the prime exponents of a unified Europe and among the most influential men of this century, has given his archives to the University of Lausanne.

The gift has made possible the setting up of the Jean Monnet Foundation for Europe, based here; its aim will he to contribute to efforts for a united Europe, inspired by Monnet's thoughts, methods and actions.

The foundation will be under the direction of Professor Henri Rieben, Monnet's longtime friend and associate. It includes in its membership many of the people Monnet has known and worked with over the years: Walter Scheel, Willy Brandt, Edward Heath, Roy Jenkins, George Ball, Katharine Graham and James Reston.

The eight tons of archives private correspondence, books. tapes, films, official documents and reports - cover the highlights of a career that spans 60 years. They will be housed at the University of Lausanne in a specially built library that will be open to the public.

Rieben notes that Monnet. who celebrated his 90th birthday Nov. 9 and received an bonorary doctorate from the University of

because of its central-European position. because a large per-centage of the student body is foreign and because he has al-ways admired Switzerland and its institutions.

Rieben says that Monnet, a methodical note-taker, never let a meeting go hy without recording it nor allowed a thought to pass without jotting it down. He says that the majority of Monnet's papers bave never been seen by anyone except his family and associates, but that now that Monnet bas published his memoirs (1976) and that his health is failing, he believes the archives should be made public for the good of Europe.

Some of the documents included in the papers are:

• The Declaration of Union (1940), conceived by Monnet and agreed to by Winston Churchill and Charles de Gaulle, that treated the transfer of the conceived by the treated the transfer of the conceived by Winston Churchill and Charles de Gaulle, that treated the transfer of the conceived the transfer of the conceived the conceiv that would have united Britain and France under one flag against the Axis powers. France fell bours before the declaration

• The Balance Sheet, a paper measuring 54-by-40-centimeters on which Monnet computed the unequal airpower between the Allies and Germany in 1938; it convinced Roosevelt to supply air materiel to the Allies.

• The Monnet Plan for France (1946), Monnet's solution for putting France back on its feet economically after the war.

 The Schuman Plan (1950), providing for the combined pro-duction of coal and steel in France, Germany, Italy and Benelux under one authority, the European Steel and Coal Com-

 Documents of the Action Committee for a United States of Europe, grouping the political and unionized forces of the six European countries and the U.S. in a political community of equal partners.

Documents pertaining to the Treaty of Rome (1957), lead-ing to the establishment of the Common Market.

Rieben says that because Monnet has known just about everyone of any importance in this century, his correspondence will be immensely interesting. He says that the papers are so complete that when they are fi-nally catalogued, which may take months, he will probably find the French passport which Churchill signed permitting Monnet to travel as a British citizen during the war. Monnet, the son of a brandy merchant in Cognac, was sent by his father to Canada, the U.S. and England as a young man to open up markets for the family husiness. This early exposure to the outside world and Monnet's assessment of the need for collective organization in business he says in his memoirs, provided him with ideas on supranational-ism that governed his lifelong work for peace.

When Monnet returned to France, his country was at war. Medically unfit for the French army, he decided to put his experience to work by proposing a plan to the French and English, who had been buying their sup-plies separately, to purchase them jointly. Monnet soon be-came known on both sides of the When the war was over, Monnet fought against the vengeful-ness of the Treaty of Versailles. Monnet was among those instrumental in bringing the nations of Europe to Geneva to found the League of Nations; he was, at the age of 30, its first secretary-

Monnet, whose optimism. modesty, persuasiveness, charm, anch Pleza reasonableness and instinct for seeking out the right people made him the man he is, points to his roots in Cognac in explaining how he has accomplished so much. It is, he says, like good hrandy: "Man proposes, but time and God have sa

Young Chefs Bring Stars to Gastronomy in Bordeaux

Overall, laparoscopy is an ex-tremely safe operation, and compli-cations (which occur in about 5 BORDEAUX (IHT) - A good D part of France still looks like its old self. After more than a century. Henry James would still recognize one of his favorite spots.

Today Bordeaux has a good, modern hotel — the Frantel — but since most visitors of mark hope to be put up in the pretty chateaus of great wine growers, the town until recently has been one of the least favored in France for public eating.

But of late there has been an upward surge in local gastronomy. Not long ago the city held a threeday Rencontres Gourmandes de Bordeaux to show off a new generation of bright, young restaurant in a casing of sea salt, imparting to chefs, and an exigent gournet the tender meet the excitement of bereabouts need no longer feel deprived if he lacks an invitation to Baron Philippe's table.

In traditional cuisine, a la Bordelaise is associated with sauces and bone marrow - cravfish on a bed of finely chopped carross, onions and celery; a garnish of cubed po-tatoes and artichoke hearts; and a lavish use of cepes (a rich wild mushroom) jacked up with garlic.

A recent Rencontres Gourdmandes lunch at the Chateau Gruaud-Larose sparkled with oew directions. It was a joint performance by two young chefs, Jean Ramet of Le Chapon Fin and Christian Clement of Le Meriadeck.

The main course was a filet mu-the nearby Atlantic. The veal was blanketed in heavy layers of the salt and was seasoned with thyme, hay leaf and fresh-ground pepper; it was haked at high temperature for 25 minutes, After a 10-minute repose, the solid-salt casing was broken before the guests, and the yeal was sliced and served with a fumet of truffles. It was simple and simply marvelnus.

For the first time in years, Bordeaux has a galaxy of Michelin stars. Clement is a one-star man. Jean-Marie Amat of Le St. James has two stars, as does Francis Garcia of La Reserve, a Relais de Campagne in a wooded park on the outskirts of town, Bordeaux's campaign to upgrade its restaurants to match its superlative wine is due largely to the dynamism of La Reserve's proprietor. Roland Flourens, who several years ago began to encourage the area's hurgeoning young talents; Gardia, for instance, was his discovery. Next year Garcia will assume partnership with Flourens of the De-bern — one of Bordeaux' oldest restaurants, if ooe somewhat fallen from grace.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Brown Boveri in S. Korean Venture

Brown Boveri und Cie. says it will set up a joint venture in South Korea with Daewoo Heavy Industries. Brown Boveri has a 49 percent stake in the venture, Daewoo Electric Co., which has an initial capital of $20 million and will, under a 12-year license agreement, build complete steam turbine sys-tems for oil-fired and ouclear power plants with Brown Boveri design. A new plant is planned at an estimated cost of around $130 million. The agreement provides that the joint venture is allowed also to export its production subject to certain conditions. The company also said it will establish a new company called North American Group from Jan. 1 covering the United States and Canada.

Fiat Suspends Plants to Cut Stocks

Fiat will close several commercial vehicle plants for 4 to 5 weeks beginning in December despite un-ion disagreements over the action. The automaker seeks to idle about 12,000 workers because slack-ened sales have boosted truck stocks to near-capacity levels. The company will continue negotiations with unions but definitely plans to make the shut-downs, the company says. In the first half, sales of all commercial vehicles dropped 20 percent from the like year-earlier period, while the slump was 40 percent for heavy trucks. Analysts also point to timing as an important factor here. Revenues would oot be affected by a price increase until next March. But the regime has to try to live between now and then.

Italy Posts Surplus

In October Payments

ROME, Nov. 22 (AP-DJ) — Italy registered a surplus in its overall balance of payments of 375 billioo lire (about $441 million) in October, compared to a surplus of 935.8 billion lire in the like month of 1977, the Bank of Italy reported today. The figures are provisional and are oot seasonally adjusted.

The Treasury Ministry has also trimmed its estimate of the government deficit for 1978 by more than 2 trillion lire because of increased pension revenues and reduced state nvestments in the south.

Canada Output Up 2.8% OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (AP-DJ) — Canada's industrial production rose 2.8 percent in September and was up 6.3 percent from a year earlier, Statistics Canada said today.

The seasonally adjusted index rose to 134 (base 1971) in September.

In the view of many diplomats here, France's threat to veto any Tokyo Round agreement worked out this year increases slightly the risk that these negotiations may

But spokesmen for the other countries insisted that this danger could and would be averted. They speculated, meanwhile, that the French might be hoping that their stand would strengthen the EEC's hand in the final stages of the To-kyo Round bargaining.

A Lone Stand

The French Minister for European Affairs, Jean-Francois Deniau, took his lone stand at a ministers' meeting called to discuss a compromise plan for ending the so-called the competitiveness of U.S. "waiver crisis" that only a few days ago threatened to torpedo the To-

The waiver crisis arose when Congress recessed last month with-out renewing President Carter's au-thority to suspend punitive import duces on foreign goods sold in the United States at prices made possi-ble by government subsidies in the country of origin. These counter-vailing duties have been in abeyance for the last five years while the United States tried to oegotiate oew rules for curbing the growing use of subsidies in trade with other countries taking part in the Tokyo

The Europeans feared that if they concluded the Tokyo Round this year, the incoming Congress might refuse to let President Carter waive the duties unless Europe gave concessions in return. So last month they angrily told the United States that they would not wrap up the negodations until the duties had been lifted.

Rejects Compromise

Mr. Deniau rejected a compro-mise laboriously worked out in Ge-oeva last week by Robert Strauss, the chief U.S. trade negotiator, and by the vice president of the EEC executive commission, Wilhelm Haferkamp, who negotiated in the

ure to By Susan Sontag, Farrar, Straus and Giroux. 246 pp. $8.95. Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

I THINK one can trace the evolu-tion of Susan Scotag's styles of radical sensibility in the eight stories of "I, Etc."

"American Spirits" and "Baby" are what I would call condescensions, or ordinary people viewed entomologically. These two stories are from a time when U.S. intellectuals seemed to be trying to secode from the human race. To show you what I mean, the names of the main characters in "American Spirits" are "Miss Flatface" and "Mr. Obscenity.

"Dr. Jekyli" and "The Dummy are parables, or magnified aphorisms, or sociology in drag. Like "American Spirits" and "Baby," they are written without much warmth, sense of sympathy, or commoo cause with the characters.

"Old Complaints Revisited" is a case of Franz Kafka turning over in his grave. T.S. Eliot observed that John Milton had a damaging effect oo young poets, and ooe might say that Franz Kafka left much of U.S. fiction in a fugue state. The bo-reaucracy that menaced Kafka's world has been perverted into a bureaucratization of writing in the United States, a reduction of inspiration to formula.

If "Old Complaints Revisited" dramatizes anything, it is only the claustrophobia of a persecuted idea. To paraphrase Jean-Paul Sartre, hell is a room with other people teaching. When Miss Sootag is obsessed with structure, she turns the reader into a rat in a maze. reader into a rat in a maze.

There is a virtuosity of boredom in "Old Complaints Revisited." In its remorseless abstraction, it reminds me of Kurt Lewin's translation of psychological forces into the lan-guage of physics. In Miss Sootag's case, it is the language of politics, and this is part of the difficulty. In Dostoyevsky's time, politics could still rise to romance; now it is the elephant's graveyard of irony.

Miss Sontag may be aware of the himitations of her story. Her heroine says, "I'm afraid of losing the sense of my problem as a general one," and goes on to add that "too many particularities will make you take my problem less serious." Accusing "the organization" — some sort of political group — of depriving her of "her commonness," she tries to construct a tragedy around the absence of tragic dy around the absence of tragic materials. She attempts to arrive at a general or conceptual tragedy, which turns out to be only a pedan-tic flirtation with tragedy, a lesson again, disguised as a story.

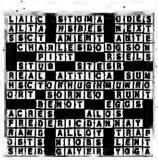

Miss Sontag ends "Old Com-plaints Revisited" by having her narrator exclaim, "If I could be lyr-ical! Unpredictable! Coocise! In love with things as they are!" This appears to be prophetic, for in the two best stories of "I, Etc.," Miss Sontag does precisely that.

Going Far

In "Project for a Trip to China," far as one can go." For the author herself, this is almost true, but not quite. Io this story, Miss Sontag has gooe a loog way toward completing a metamorphosis that I would describe as triumphant. There are a number of lovely ironies, which work precisely because there is love in them. Miss Sontag's embrace of the Chinese is wide enough to take in dragons, 100-year-old eggs, Myr-na Loy and a "pair of green and white canvas sneakers with 'Made in China' in ridged letters on the rubber soles."

The narrator ponders "an unfinished pain that might, just might, get lost in the endless Chinese smile." She listens to the women 'speak bitterness" about men, learns that a "heavy death" is better than a "light" one. Reflectielong that China once "meant ultims refloements." she observes the to refloements." she observes the to "now China means ultimate simp war. fying." adding. "simpler, as intench great forgetting."

While "Project for a Trip glish, China" is a good story, "Unguic sup-Tour" is Miss Sootag's apothecknase as a fiction writer. I believe it in bebe one of the most modern storier the have ever read — perhaps one himisthe best. Hasselblad Will Sets Up Prizes For Scientists STOCKHOLM, Nov. 22 (AP). The will of Victor Hasselblad, the designer of the world famous Sweet ish camera, has instituted a net prize that will almost match the Nobel prizes in money, if not prestige.

Signed only two weeks before his death in August, Hasselblad's will stated that the returns from a 21 million krona fund (about $6.43 million), will be awarded annually to scientists in the field of natural

The amount to be distributed every year was unofficially estimated at about 3 million krona ($700,000). The value of the combined Nobel prizes amounted this year to about $800,000.

Hasselblad, not forgetting the professional corps using his cameras, in his will also instituted an annual prize for photographers of about $20,000 and a gold medal.

$100,000 for Stamp

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (Reuters) —A postage stamp which was sold 60 years ago for 24 cents was auc-tioned for $100,000 dollars, a record U.S. sale price. The 24-cent Jenny airmail, with an upside-down plane on its face, was sold to an East Coast dealer whose name was not revealed by Sotheby Parke Bernet, the auctioners.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 22 (UPI) — Chris Chambliss, the Yan-kee first baseman, says Reggie Jackson caused the firing of Billy Martin as manager and says Jack-son puts himself above the club to the detriment of the world champi-

He acknowledged that Jackson helped the Yankees retain their world championship but said the rightfielder-designated hitter is not the key to the team's success.

Very well, then. I have been in the shop for a valve and piston job. and during that time study events came to pass that might have elicit-ed comments here. There was, for example, the zealous breast-beating by a committee of baseball writers arying to choose between Ron Guidry and Jim Rice as the most valuable player in the American League.
Ultimately Boston's forbidding batsman won by a comfortable margin over the Yankees' incomparable pitcher, but before the votes were cast. Guidry's creden-tials were cited in arguments bordering on the passionate. It was all unnecessary.

Guidry won 25 games. Forty of Rice's 46 home runs either tied the score or put the Rex Sox ahead. Without a play-by-play review of the team's 162 games, it seemed safe to estimate that Rice's bat won 50 of them. How can anyone make

When a pennant has been won, the players always meet to cut up the World Series swag and, being human, they are influenced in debatable cases by their likes and dislikes. It didn't strike everybody as a display of impulsive generosity when the Yankees voted half a share to the man who opened the season as their manager and half a share to his successor. Historians were reminded of the 1932 Cubs, who freely conceded that they might not have won the pennant if they hadn't got Mark Koenig to play shortstop through the last six weeks - and then voted him a quarter of a share.

Jets' Todd Out

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP) -The New York Jets placed quarterback Richard Todd on the National Football League's injured-re-serve list yesterday after X-rays confirmed that he had suffered a cracked fragment in his left collarbone during Sunday's game against the New England Patriots. The move means Todd will be sidelined for the rest of the season.

Another vote at least as interest the Yankees' owner went into the ubide is to have his players look as cheap as some of them are.

Listen to the Master

During the recent oewspaper blackout in New York. Time magazine published a wonderfully-unioformed essay about America's sports pages. Chances are that even if the papers hadn't been shut down, they wouldn't have considered the piece worthy of notice and perhaps it is a waste of space to comment on it now. Still, it's difficult to let such rancid prose ("that profusion of purposeful perspira-tion") go by unmentioned.

The magazine made the valid point that the general level of sports-writing and editing is higher than it was 50 years ago. However, it left the impression that its research into sports writing of early vintage began and ended with Grantland Rice's 1924 lead about the Four Horsemen of Noire

Dame.
"It was not until the 1920's and early 1930's," said Time, "the so-called 'Golden Age of Sports', that such platinum-penned scribblers as Ring Lardner, Damon Runyon, Westbrook Pegler and Heywood Broun brought something resembling literature to the sports pages— — and, alas, took it with them when they passed." Long before the Peglers and Runyons, there were perceptive re-porters brightening the sports pag-es with scholarship and wit — stars named Charley Dryden, Hugh E. Keough, Bunk MacBeth, Harry Cross and Hugh Fullerton. If the author of the Time piece wasn't around when these men were covering sports, there must be somebody around the shop who was old enough to read in the more recent era of John Lardner, Joe Palmer, Frank Graham, Jimmy Cannon, W.C. Heinz, Dan Parker, John Kieran, Stanley Woodward, Chas Adams and Joe Williams, to mention a few in New York alone.

Transparent Spleen

Apparently acting over the head of the head coach, the New York Giants' brass has reacted to last Sunday's freak defeat by firing Bob Gibson, the offensive coordinator. Though Andy Robustelli, the director of operations, said the botched play that gave the game to the Philadelphia Eagles was not of itself the reason for Gibson's dismissal, the timing alone makes it look like an outburst of spleen in the administrative office.

Gibson sent in the play that failed and it wasn't a good choice, With the Giants leading, 17-12, and in possession with 31 seconds on the clock, the safe and sensible tactie would have been for Joe Pisarcik, the quarterback, to fall on the ball and let time run out. Instead, Gibson called for a handoff to Larry Csonka in a plunge for a first down that wasn't needed.

Pisarcik spun to his right and as he came around, the ball brushed the shoulder of Csonka, who was lunging past on the quarterback's left. Jostled loose, the ball was fielded by Philadelphia's Herm Edwards, who ran all by himself for the winning touchdown.

Robustelli said the play was "the culmination of some things," imon offense and defense was his alone. It's a difference in class.

At age 23, this was the second time in his life that Blyth, a Scottish international, had heard the call from Manchester United, although previously Co-ventry had not been interested in

Something for Everyone

Now it was though, and he traveled to Manchester, posed happily outside the stadium (as you would expect from a young man about to become $40,000 the richer, his cut from the transfer fee), and went inside for the customary medical.

So, on Saturday morning, those of us charged with reporting United's match against Ipswich were besieging an unknown rookie with questions which ranged from "who are you" to "how does it feel." We were impressed immediately with the man's calm: He told us he was born in Ipswich, although he had in fact been raised in South Africa. His dad, Roy, had been Ipswich goalie in the 1962 championshipwinning side.

Bailey certainly looked the part at 6 feet 2 inches, 189 pounds, and he said: "I honestly don't feel nervous. It's an opportunity I mean to take. France's Second Empire: A Lot of Fun

By Paul Richard

PHILADELPHIA (WP) — "The Second Empire: An in France Under Napoleon III." the wry, enormous show at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. is deliciously subversive, poking a hundred holes in that agreedupon fable called The Origin of Modern Art

The conventional story is that it was horn of a thrilling mid-19th-century confrontation in France. The antagonists were the Good Guy (most likely an Impressionist, reviled by the Es-tablishment for his white beret and unheated garrett and the Of-ficial Artist — trained in the academy and usually depicted as a black-mustachioed, airs-put-ting-on artist who schemes to keep the daring out of the Salon. In most renderings of the tale, the O.A. doesn't stand a chance. 'The Second Empire" is, however. a revisionist exhibit. Instead of paying ritual homage to esthetic revolution, it stars the official artists. The Second Empire embraced the reign of Napoleon III. from 1852 to 1870. "This is a period," writes French scholar Jean-Marie Moulin in the exhibition catalog, "that has been ignored — one might almost say erased by French art historians, who have considered it insignificant if not monstrous."

Confidence

Second Empire Paris must have been lots of fun. It was a time of confidence, splendor and frivolity. The music halls and theaters were full, Engineers were opening the Suez Canal and changing the look of Paris - broad avenues were being rammed through the center of towo, and under construction were the Opera, the Gare du Nord, Les Halles and the Bihliotheque Imperiale.

Ornament was - and, in this show, is - everywhere, Building facades covered with pediments and statues. Fronds and vines and tendrils crawling all over porcelains and glass. Metalwork modeled, chased, engraved, gemstudded; cheruhim swarming on candlesticks and clocks, And, showing off their amply visible charms, at least a thousand nymphs and goddesses.

This art does not pretend to he original. Its motifs pay sometimes simultaneous homage to Greece. Pompeii and Rome, as well as 10 Gothic and Romanesque and art of the Near East and the Orient, Running wild are bedouins on horseback. Romans in togas, satyrs, dryads, and saints.

But underpinning the eclectic whole is a touching and often overlooked progressivism: Though conservative in taste. those official artists were radically innnovative in technique. The pavilions of Les Halles were made of iron and glass. The

made in 1856, includes a whistle for the baby, and emeralds and diamonds, doubtless for his parents. This extraordinary object also boasts four statuettes and two small medallions, all made of aluminum - perhaps the first work of art in which that new metal was used.

Geegaws

The Second Empire in France was dominated by the rising bourgeoisie. Many of the more ornate objects were made hy large, efficient factories that husily produced gewgaws of all sorts for the prospering middle class. Much Second Empire art might seem offensively hour-geois, but its charm is undeniable. Bubbling within is an uncalled this art 'pretentious' (pom-pier) and 'official,' and willingly ridiculed it, forgetting that this art sprung from within its own manks."

Most art texts insist that Degas, Rodin, Manet, Courbet
and other early modernists were implacably at war with the imi-tative hacks of French official

art. But one virtue of this show is its wilty way of showing us that the paintings of the old guard and the young Turks were in spirit much alike.

Centerfold

the saloos. Delacroix and Ingres, too, are represented by large crowd-pleasers of women with-lovely Ingres borrowed from the Louvre, is a sexy as a centerfold.

One Degas on view is "The Daughter of Jephthah," a huge, tale-telling Bible scene that is wholly of its time. "Young Girl with Roses on Her Hat," the Rodin terracotta, shows an innocent young lady, "wide-eyed, pert-nosed, with a bee-stung mouth;" she wears a fashionable hat. The message of this bust—

and of a hundred other works

On the sick list is Willy Brandt, West Germany's former chancellor, who has suffered what is described as a mild heart attack. One of the more reclusive citizens in Newport, R. I., is also one of the fashionable resort's more famous: Doris Duke. She spends most of her time secluded at her estate. Rough Point, surrounded by a high, barbed-wire fence, with guard dogs roaming the grounds. But occasion-ally Miss Duke ventures out, and when she does, it is usually in connection with the work of the Newport Restoration Foundation, whose work she has already aided to the tune of $12 million. The 63year-old tobacco heiress showed up this week in Queen Anne Square, a public park being revitalized by the foundation, to supervise the planting of trees and other work. Apparently. Newporters give Miss Duke a wide berth as a matter of courtesy, hut a visiting photographer from Providence started taking pictures. A foundation official demanded that he stop photographing "the lady" and so the photographer called a policeman. Officer Kenneth Riley ordered the photographer to gn away because he was "harassing" Miss Duke. That led to a complaint to the chief of police. Frederick Newton. In the ensuing fuss. Chief Newton denied that policemen were heing "overprotective
